

Angels Of The Prairie

Music & Lyrics by Jeff Davidson

© all rights reserved

The copyright is dated 2008, but I actually wrote this song "about" 1999. I got the idea on my way home from the Strong City rodeo. I dropped a covered wagon off a few miles from Matfield Green, and took the road from there going by Teterville, through Thrall on my way home to Tonovay. I stopped on top of Texaco hill, just to look at the moonlight on the hills at about midnight.

Angels have painted the prairie tonight
With silver from the moon, and gold from starlight
Shadows from the hilltops, in the distance so blue
But I can see only you.

Angels have touched the prairie tonight
With warm summer breezes, that whisper so quiet
They bring the message, that you love me too
Now I'm only touched by you

The prairie seems richer at nighttime than at day
But the silver from the moon will soon fade away
But the diamonds that sparkle in the heavens at night
Are there in the dewdrops, of first morning light

Angels bring sweet dreams to the prairie tonight
Under a blanket of stars shining bright
Fulfilling the promise that dreams will come true
And I only dream of you

Tag: Yes, I only dream of you